

I am a resident of Indiana who has taken advantage of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. I would strongly urge the FCC to not implement any similar proposal on a national basis that would provide less protection than Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law currently provides to it's residents.

Since I took advantage of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law I have had a noticeable reduction in the number of telephone solicitations. This reduction in unwanted telephone calls has allowed me to spend more time with my family and to not be interrupted during meal times.

Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law allows gives residents the option of letting telemarketers know they are not interested in telephone solicitations. There are other ways for businesses to reach potential customers that are less intrusive, e.g. television, radio, print media, billboards, etc.

Please do not implement any proposal regarding telephone solicitations that provides any less protection for residents than the current Indiana Telephone Privacy Law.
